

Empowering citizens to take control of their food and nutrition data for a healthier and more sustainable future

The FOODITY mission is to create a dynamic ecosystem of digital solutions for food and nutrition that respect citizens' rights to personal data sovereignty in Europe.

Data-driven innovation

Better food and nutrition systems

Respect for citizens' right to sovereignty over their personal data

FOODITY will demonstrate the potential of data-driven innovation to improve food systems — involving citizens in developing solutions and giving them full control over their personal data.

To this end, FOODITY will run a €2 million pilot development programme funding 12 industry and research collaborations.
